LA orders customers, workers to wear face coverings as coronavirus protection

Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti has ordered all essential workers and all residents who visit essential businesses to wear face coverings. Social distancing restrictions are becoming stricter. For more information about the city or county your business is located in, see the CRA's list of local restrictions, which is being updated regularly.

A check in with the restaurant and service industry: Will the stimulus package help?

Listen as the CRA's President and CEO, Jot Condie, discusses the impacts of coronavirus on California restaurants and tells us what restaurants need today in order to be able to reopen once the crisis has passed. Jot was featured on Air Talk with Larry Mantle in Southern California, and on Capital Public Radio's Insight in Northern California.

Webinar: CRA Presents Small Business Provisions of CARES Act

Thursday, April 09, 2020, 12:00 Noon - 1:00 PM PST | On March 27, 2020, President Trump signed into law the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (the CARES Act). There is no shortage of coverage and commentary on the CARES Act, so we are focusing here on provisions most likely to provide immediate cash flow to small and medium-sized businesses. The CRA and Weintraub Tobin, a CRA Legal Center partner, present a webinar to help restaurants find some relief in these uncharted times.

After health inspectors began shutting down restaurants for selling grocery items to the public, the CRA worked with the LA County Department of Public Health to come to a compromise. Now, that county is allowing these sales under certain conditions, and the CRA is going to use that compromise as a template to advocate for other jurisdictions to follow. Here, Sabrina tells us how it will work. Learn more about California state and local COVID-19 restrictions related to restaurants. Within this list of Northern and Southern California counties that have issued restrictions, you'll find a section devoted to LA County, with a link to that county's new food facility guidance.
