San Mateo tells visitors to stop crossing county lines for dining and haircuts

San Mateo made a choice not to implement a stay-at-home order after other counties in this region did so voluntarily — the region has not hit the state's threshold triggering the order. The result? Residents of other Bay Area counties are going to San Mateo County to shop and take part in other activities.

Lawyer Limelight: Dennis Ellis

Dennis Ellis, a highly-respected California attorney, is the son of Sharon Majors-Lewis, who was judicial appointments secretary for Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger and is now a Superior Court judge. Ellis, who juggles a busy law practice with a family life that includes a newborn son, was the CRA's attorney in the case against LA County's ban on outdoor dining.

Domino's to spend over $9.6 million on frontline worker bonuses

It's a sliver of good news in a world of hurt for restaurants in 2020: Domino's, with increased sales in 2020, is giving end-of-year bonuses to frontline workers. The amounts are comparable to the federal government's one-time stimulus checks that were never renewed.

Restaurant industry pushes for priority on having its workers vaccinated

"We continue to suggest that, as an important industry, those workers should be part of the food-supply-chain workforce that gets vaccinated early. Whether that happens in every state or every situation, we don't know yet." – Tom Bene, CEO of the National Restaurant Association
